It is reported that the Salisbury chautauqua had a deficit for this year and the original guarantors were called upon to make good. The Redpath-Vawter Company wanted a guarantee of $1800 or about 725 tickets at $2.50 and the Press-Spectator says experience has taught that only about 600 tickets can be sold. A contract for the coming year was not signed.

The following is a clipping from the Sunday Topeka Capital, which will be of interest to our readers here and at Marceline. Miss Veal lived at Marceline until three years ago when her family moved to Topeka. "Miss Verda Veal, one of the most promising members of Topeka's artistic crowd, is to have a particularly interesting exhibit in the arts building at the fair this week. Miss Veal, who took special study under Miss Marian Eggers of the Topeka high school faculty, has been studying during the summer months, in Colorado, and has had much of her work sold from the shops in resort places. Featured among her showing will be work in clay, trays, vases and other forms of handicraft."

If all the money that has been invested by citizens of this state during the past year and in fact any year, in wild cat securities that have brought practically no return, had been invested in house building there would be no shortage of dwellings and every one so doing would have their money safely invested. For a mere chance to make big returns the money invested in these schemes is lost for good and always. It would seem that everybody would learn some day that there is no sure short cut to wealth. If it was only people able to lose the money so invested it would not be so serious, but in most instances it is hard earned dollars that should never be used for speculation. Bank Commissioner Hughes has forcefully called attention to this weakness of human nature.
